Speakers: Sally Rockey– FFAR, Adam Chambers– NRCS, Steve Kappes– ARS, Keith Gillis– California BFFE, Sharon Nance– Area 3 Assistant Conservationist NRCS
- Agriculture faces the challenge of adapting to and mitigating the impacts of climate change on food, feed, fiber, and fuel systems. While agriculture is viewed as a substantial contributor to climate change, this dynamic can be changed by creating solutions to the complex, interrelated causes of climate change through the development of science-based and data-driven practices and policies that reduce greenhouse gas emissions and sequester carbon, while building resilience to the effects of climate change in our food, agricultural and forest systems. To focus the efforts of the Experiment Station Section, this session will engage a panel of experts addressing a broad range of climate change issues in agriculture.
- 9:15 am PDT      Tabletop discussions; NANP CC will be at the same table – Palisades Tahoe CC
“Based on the expertise at your institutions, what are 2-3 strategies that leaders can take in the next 3-5 years that have regional or national potential to adapt to or mitigate climate change?”
